Lone gunman kills 58, injures hundreds, in Las Vegas

(Reuters)

LAS VEGAS (Reuters) - A 64-year-old man armed with multiple machine guns strafed an outdoor country music festival in Las Vegas from a high-rise hotel window on Sunday, slaughtering at least 58 people in the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history before killing himself.

The barrage of gunfire from a 32nd-floor window of the Mandalay Bay hotel into a crowd of 22,000 people lasted several minutes, sparking panic as throngs of music fans desperately covered on the open ground, hemmed in by fellow concertgoers, while others at the edge tried to flee.

More than 500 people were injured - some by gunfire, some trampled - in the pandemonium adjacent to the Las Vegas Strip as police scrambled to locate the assailant.

Police on Monday identified the gunman as Stephen Paddock, who lived in a retirement community in Mesquite, Nevada. They said they believed he acted alone and did not know why he attacked the crowd. The Islamic State militant group claimed responsibility for the massacre, but U.S. officials said there was no evidence of that.

Nevada has some of the nation's most permissive gun laws. It does not require firearm owners to obtain licenses or register their guns.

House of Representatives Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi, a Democrat, on Monday called on House Speaker Paul Ryan to create a select committee on gun violence.

The dead in Las Vegas included a nurse, a government employee and an off-duty police officer.

Shocked survivors, some with blood on their clothing, wandered streets, where the flashing lights of the city's gaudy casinos blended with those of emergency vehicles.

Police said Paddock had no criminal record. The gunman killed himself before police entered the hotel room from where he was firing, Clark County Sheriff Joseph Lombardo told reporters.

"We have no idea what his belief system was," Lombardo said. "I can't get into the mind of a psychopath."

Federal officials said there was no evidence to link Paddock to militant organizations.

"We have determined to this point no connection with an international terrorist group," Aaron Rouse, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) field office in Las Vegas, told reporters. U.S. officials discounted the claim of responsibility for the attack made by Islamic State in a statement.

Lombardo said there were more than 10 rifles in the room where Paddock killed himself. His arsenal included multiple machine guns, according to a law enforcement official.

U.S. law largely bans machine guns.

Police found several more weapons at Paddock's home in Mesquite, about 90 miles (145 km) northeast of Las Vegas, Mesquite police spokesman Quinn Averett told reporters.

The shooting, just the latest in a string that have played out across the United States over recent years, sparked a renewed outcry from some lawmakers about the pervasiveness of guns in the United States, but was unlikely to prompt action in Congress. Trump said he would travel to Las Vegas on Wednesday to meet with victims, their family members and first responders.

"It was an act of pure evil," said Trump, who later led a moment of silence at the White House in honor of the victims.

The suspected shooter's brother, Eric Paddock, said the family was stunned by the news.

In today's highly fractured world, it's not often that lawmakers from the two parties agree on anything...

Sen. Cory Booker (D-NJ) and Oklahoma Sen. James Lankford (R-OK) have co-sponsored a bill that would strip any taxpayer funding for professional sports teams...

"Professional sports teams generate billions of dollars in revenue," Booker said in a June 13 statement. "There's no reason why we should give these multimillion-dollar businesses a federal tax break to build new stadiums..."

Said Lankford: "The federal government is responsible for a lot of important functions, but financing sports stadiums for multi-million — sometimes billion — dollar franchises is definitely not one of them..."

A spokesman from Lankford's office told The Daily Caller on Sunday that "in the last four weeks interest in the bill has picked up since both members proposed it four months ago..."

The two senators said that since 2000, 36 professional sports stadiums have been constructed or revamped under financing provided by federal tax-exempt municipal bonds, costing taxpayers over $3.2 billion...

Bipartisan Effort In Congress To Strip NFL Of Taxpayer Funding For Stadiums Is Gaining Steam

Fans flock to professional football events and generate millions in revenue.

The true cost is more like $7 billion, reported Watchdog.org. "Overall, taxpayers have spent nearly $3 billion on the 16 stadiums that will host NFL games during the season's opening weekend..."

The New England Patriots built the impressive Gillette Stadium in Foxboro, Mass., with $72 million in taxpayer cash. The Pittsburgh Steelers tapped taxpayers for $171.6 million, while the Indianapolis Colts grabbed $619 million in taxpayer subsidies.

"Players on the Baltimore Ravens and Jacksonville Jaguars, all who can potentially benefit from taxpayer dollars at the local, state and federal levels, followed the lead of former San Francisco 49er quarterback Colin Kaepernick Sunday..."

Here's How Much Money the NFL Rakes in From U.S. Taxpayers

The National Football League is now plunged into politics as players throughout the sport kneel for the national anthem and President Donald Trump continues to rebuke them publicly.

Undoubtedly, the situation has left many fans and non-fans of the league conflicted or angry.

This fiasco may, however, open the eyes of the public to a serious and generally unchecked issue: billionaire NFL owners sponging enormous amounts of money from taxpayers through crony capitalist schemes. The fact is that a business that raked in $14 billion in revenue in 2016 is heavily subsidized by local, state, and federal money based on dubious claims about stimulating the economy.

The problem is rampant. One report on Watchdog.org said that over the past two decades, the NFL has raked in about $7 billion of taxpayer money to spend on stadium renovation and building. Another study from the Brookings Institution showed that federal taxpayers have subsidized the construction of 36 stadiums at a cost of over $3.2 billion since 2000.

Michael Sargent, an infrastructure expert at The Heritage Foundation, wrote about how sports teams use specially crafted tax breaks to get the public to finance their massive projects.

"Tax-exempt municipal bonds are typically reserved for public-use projects such as bridges, water systems, and other infrastructure," Sargent wrote for The Daily Signal. "Yet because of a loophole in the tax code, private-use stadiums can take advantage of this tax break, and have done so prolifically..."

In fact, only a handful of NFL and other major league teams use privately-financed venues to host their games.

It would seem after sinking enormous investments into sports franchises, cities would reap serious financial benefits in return.

But this isn't the case at all. Research from George Mason University has shown that not only do communities gain almost no economic benefits from subsidized sports teams, but some findings "indicate harmful effects of sports on per capita income, wage and salary disbursements, and wages per job..."

Recently released polls show national anthem protests are deeply unpopular with the American people, but polls also show that the taxpayer funding of sports is also widely disliked.

When likely voters in Nevada were asked if they favored or opposed using $500 million in taxpayer dollars to fund a stadium for the Oakland Raiders to move to Las Vegas, they overwhelmingly said "no." According to the KTNV-TV 13 Action News/Rasmussen Reports poll, 60 percent of Nevada voters opposed the funding, and only 28 percent supported it. Given the massive discontent over national anthem kneeling and rampant politicization of the once unifying sport of football, perhaps now Americans will turn a more skeptical eye toward how their sports teams rely on public money and actually do something about it.

There are some in Congress who have taken notice.

"In America, if you want to play sports, you're free to do so. If you want to protest, you're free to do so," Rep. Matt Gaetz, R-Fla., said in a Tuesday speech, according to The Washington Post. "But you should do so on your own time and on your own dime..."

Recent bipartisan legislation on Capitol Hill aimed to strip federal funding from sports teams. A bill sponsored by Sens. James Lankford, R-Okla., and Cory Booker, D-N.J., would prevent teams from using municipal bonds that are exempt from federal taxes.

Rep. Steve Russell, R-Okla., introduced a similar bill in the House.

Lankford said in a statement in June: The federal government is responsible for a lot of important functions, but financing sports stadiums for multimillion—sometimes billion—dollar franchises is definitely not one of them. Using billions of federal taxpayer dollars for the subsidization of private stadiums when we have real infrastructure needs in our country is not a good way to prioritize a limited amount of funds.

Congressman Matt Gaetz is using his role as a congressman to join the debate on the "take a knee" demonstrations going on during NFL games.

Tuesday morning, President Trump reiterated his disdain for the NFL, saying they need to set a rule that bans kneeling during the National Anthem.

Gaetz spoke about it on the House Floor Tuesday morning, calling to officially end the tax-exempt status of the NFL's league office.

"The public pays 70 percent of the cost of NFL stadiums," Representative Gaetz said. "Tax-exempt sports leagues generate nearly $2 billion in revenue and yet the tax code gives them a special break that small businesses in my district don't get. That's unfair..."

Professional football players during national anthem - 2017.

Gaetz did acknowledge that the NFL voluntarily gave up their tax-exempt status, which happened in 2015. But he called for a permanent end of the tax-exempt status for professional sports leagues, which is what H.R. 296, also called the PRO (Properly Reducing Overexemptions) Sports Act, would do.

The legislation was originally introduced by Representative Jason Chaffetz of Utah, who has since resigned from Congress. Gaetz has now signed on as the lead sponsor. The bill cites leagues like the NHL, PGA Tour and LPGA (all tax exempt) as examples of entities that would be affected.

On Tuesday, Gaetz became the lead sponsor of legislation that would end the tax-exempt status of professional sports leagues.

NFL and other sports teams have a deep financial interest in getting taxpayers to pay their bills, so it will take a widespread concerted effort on the part of the public to end this gravy train.

Since NFL billionaire owners have gone out of their way to accommodate millionaire players in standing down for the national anthem, perhaps taxpaying Americans should start withholding money from the privileged and let them all stand on their own two feet. (Courtesy dailysignal.com)

Now may be the perfect time to finally do it.

CHICAGO - Forty-five years ago, a group of world ping-pong champions from China paid a return visit to America...

Normalization of relations between the two rival nations during the cold war was gradually realized thanks to ping-pong...

In the past five days, athletes who personally witnessed the ping-pong diplomacy decades ago, reunited in the US to celebrated the 45 anniversary of Chinese team's first visit to America in 1972.

"I'm very excited to have a chance to be here again and meet my old friends," said 67-year-old ping-pong veteran Liang Geliang.

He and Zheng Huaiying, former woman world champion, played an exhibition match on Monday night in the University of Michigan with Dell and Connie Sweeris...

The couple's last visit to China was in 2011, when they were invited to take part in the celebration of the 40th anniversary of ping-pong diplomacy.

Recalling her crossing a bridge from Hong Kong and set foot in what Washington used to call "Communist China", Connie told Xinhua that she was anxious and even a little scared because she knew very little about China and its people before.

Moreover, Americans were not allowed by their administrations to visit China since 1949.

their tour, Connie found "the Chinese players were very friendly and treated us with respect and kindness". They made friends with each other.

During their meeting this time in Michigan University, Connie Sweeris chatted warmly with her old friend Zheng Huaiying. The two showed each other the digital pictures of their children and grandchildren they keep in their cell phones.

Both the Chinese and US athletes were still very familiar with the old Chinese sports slogan "friendship first, competition second" as they staged their ping-pong skills in front of a large cheering crowd in the University of Michigan.

Along with the ping-pong hall of famers, some young Chinese champions also attended the events in New York, Chicago of Illinois and Michigan from September 15 to 19.

Wang Hao, Ding Ning, Yan Sen and Qiao Hong, all younger world ping-pong champions, were deeply touched when they heard the old generation of the Chinese and US players talking about what they experienced.

"It is really good to learn what happened some 45 years ago and how significantly the old generation of ping-pong players did for the Sino-American relationship," Wang Hao said.

The Chinese delegation also visited the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library on the university's Ann Arbor campus, where they had a chance to read the archives about the meeting between China's late Chairman Mao Zedong and then US President Gerald Ford.

The official interpreter for the high-level

Sino-American talks, Tang Wensheng, who was former vice-chairperson of the China Soong Ching Ling Foundation that sponsored the ping-pong players' current visit, explained to them the delicacy of relations between China, the former Soviet Union and the US during the Cold War.

In the Ford Presidential Library, the dis-classified minutes from the White House brought her back to the 1970s.

Madame Tang was personally involved in the ping-pong diplomacy from 1971. She knows what's behind the doors and how the leaders pushed the normalization of the relations between the two countries, which significantly changed the world.

Jan Berris, now the vice-president of the National Committee on United States-China Relations, was one of the those who escorted the first Chinese ping-pong delegation 45 years ago.

She told Xinhua that during the trip, the American journalists and the ordinary people constantly asked Chinese ping-pong players, "what is about the US that surprised you most? What did you find here that you didn't expect?"

"I would hear their response--We are really surprised about how warm and welcoming the American people are," said Berris, but adding she first thought it must be what they were told to reply.

But at the end of the 18-day tour, she believed that the Chinese players were right.

"It was really a wonderful experience and the best people-to-people diplomacy that was supposed to do," she said.

Celebrities call for gun control in wake of Las Vegas mass shooting

In the wake of the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history — a gunman firing on concertgoers at the Route 91 Harvest music festival on the Las Vegas Strip Sunday and killing at least 58 people — celebrities are among the many fed-up Americans calling for better gun control laws.

Lady Gaga was one of the many to speak out on social media on Monday, declaring suspected gunman Stephen Paddock's shooting spree an act of "terrorism, plain and simple" and asking "Democrats and Republicans" to "unite now" on gun control. In one post, she called out President Trump and House Speaker Paul Ryan directly, saying that "blood is on the hands of those who have the power to legislate."

Ariana Grande, whose Manchester, England, concert venue was the scene of another horrific mass shooting just months ago, also shared her thoughts. "My heart is breaking for Las Vegas," wrote the singer. "We need love, unity, peace, gun control & for people to look at this & call this what it is = terrorism."

Julianne Moore has long been an outspoken advocate for gun violence awareness and she spoke out again today. "Today we mourn for Las Vegas, tomorrow we fight for them," she wrote, while encouraging "everyone join the movement to end gun violence."

Lady Gaga, is among the Americans demanding tougher gun laws.

Country music star reacts to mass shooting during Las Vegas concert

Hours after a gunman fired shots into the crowd of an outdoor music festival on the Las Vegas Strip, killing at least 20 people and wounding more than 100, Country music star Jason Aldean, who was performing at the time, posted to social media to let fans know he and his crew are safe.

"Tonight has been beyond horrific," Aldean wrote in his Instagram post Sunday night. The post included a photo of the Las Vegas strip with text over it that reads, "Pray for Las Vegas." "I still don't know what to say but wanted to let everyone know that Me and my Crew are safe. My Thoughts and prayers go out to everyone involved tonight. It hurts my heart that this would happen to anyone who was just coming out to enjoy what should have been a fun night."

The shots rang out as Aldean was performing in the Route 91 Harvest Festival. The suspect was found on the 32nd floor of the Mandalay Bay Hotel and Casino across the street from the concert, officials told the Associated Press. The suspect has been reported dead. No further information on the suspect was immediately available.

Photos from the Associated Press show concertgoers hitting the ground and ducking as they run for cover. Among the 20 dead are two off-duty officers.

Texas couple survives Las Vegas shooting: 'It seemed like it would never end'

The Texas couple was among the tens of thousands of fans crowded around the stage Sunday night to watch the closing act of the three-day Route 91 Harvest Festival when the gunfire started. From a perch on the 32nd floor of the nearby Mandalay Bay highrise casino and hotel, 64-year-old retiree "I would say it was maybe four songs into the set, maybe five, when I heard something," Bethune said. "You could hear the pops but you couldn't see any lights - and a moment later you could see on the screen Jason Aldean run off stage."

Everyone hit the ground. The shots kept coming. "It was just chaos," Bethune said. Then, a break. Silence. "Some people got up and ran and some stayed on the ground," he said. "We went ahead and ran." They headed for a back exit, fleeing over grounds covered with huddled bodies, spilled drinks and discarded bottles. As the Bethunes made it outside, a fresh string of gunshots echoed through the night sky. "We thought there was a second shooter - and the first shooter was pushing us into another one," he said.

Terrified, they jumped one fence, then another. Sherrell hurt her hip, and Mark fell on his knee - but after what seemed like an eternity of breathless running, they made it back to their hotel. From the window of their room at the Hooters Casino Hotel - a spot they picked for its proximity to the venue - the Bethunes could still see the chaos. They locked their door and hunkered down. But they still had no idea what happened.

"We started trying to find information - but it was so new nothing was on TV," he said.

At first, there were rumors of other shooters down the strip. Then, death tolls began to emerge. Two dead. Twenty injured.

"My wife and I just looked at each other and said that's not possible," he said. And it wasn't. As the night went on, the numbers climbed.

By the next day, officials put the death toll at 58, with more than 500 wounded.

It's still not clear what motivated the attack. At one point, ISIS took credit, but the terror group offered no proof of its claim. Las Vegas Mayor Carolyn Goodman called it the act of a "crazed lunatic full of hate."

For hours, local authorities shut down streets and nearby hotels. Interstate 15 was shut down and flights at McCarran International Airport were put on hold.

By noon Monday, some parts of the strip seemed to be opening up again - and the Bethunes hoped to make their afternoon flight back to West Texas, where they now live.

"Time is just a blur," Bethune said, thinking back on the night with barely an hour of sleep under his belt.

"The total amount of gunfire was just incredible."

美南電視轉換新頻道15.3操作指南

美南國際電視網STV Channel 已由55.5 轉換至15.3，並正式擴大為十個頻道，廣大收視觀眾只要透過遙控器轉台至15.3，即可收看到美南電視節目，如果您家中的電視遙控器轉到15.3頻道，依然無法收看到美南電視，請依以下中英對照操作指南方式調整。

阿湯哥《美國制造》登頂北美周五票房 “小醜回魂”保持亞軍 成史上最賣座恐怖片

湯姆·克魯斯個人魅力擋不住，其主演的政治驚悚片《美國制造》本周五拿下超過600萬美元票房，成為當日票房冠軍。《美國制造》是導演道格·裏曼和阿湯哥繼《明日邊緣》後的再度合作，講述前中情局員工、兼職毒品走私者 Barry Seal 的故事，涉及上世紀80年代諸多美國真實政治內幕。對於海外市場來說，儘管題材並不討好，但憑借著阿湯哥的明星號召力，本片在英國、澳大利亞和西班牙也獲得亮眼表演。從《新木乃伊》到《美國制造》，阿湯哥可謂現身說法什麼叫“個人魅力”和“明星效應”。

本周，斯蒂芬·金《小醜回魂》創下了歷史，北美票房累計2.7億美元，全球票房超過5億，成為影史上最賣座恐怖片，由《驅魔人》保持的4.41億恐怖片影史最高票房紀錄在塵封44年後作古。上周上映拿下北美和全球票房雙冠軍的《王牌特工：黃金圈》本周五跌落至第三，比亞軍《小醜回魂》只略低10萬美元。另外，《美國制造》的600萬票房中包含將近100萬的預售票房，除去這部分，《美國制造》與第二、三名的差距並不大。因此本周末票房排行榜的前三名位次仍有變化的可能。

《樂高幻影忍者大電影》和新開畫的恐怖片《靈異空間》分列第四、五位。

《靈異空間》在爛番茄獲得“0鮮開”的成績，並且現在新鮮度仍然為零，爛得奪人眼球，估計會勾起不少人想看的欲望。下周，口碑爆棚的《銀翼殺手2049》正式上映，同時上映的還有凱特·溫絲萊特主演的求生愛情片《遠山戀人》，以及變形金剛“妹妹”小馬寶莉主演的《小馬寶莉大電影》。

《星球大戰8》是史上最長“星戰”電影？ 網傳時長150分鐘 篇幅超過《克隆人的進攻》

多家北美主流電影售票網站今天更新了《星球大戰：最後的絕地武士》（下稱“《星球大戰8》”）的放映時長為150分鐘，如果信息屬實，那麼《星戰8》將是整個《星球大戰》系列電影中篇幅最長的壹部，比《星球大戰前傳2：克隆人的進攻》還要多出8分鐘。

《星球大戰8》由萊恩·約翰遜導演，故事緊接《星球大戰：原力覺醒》，講述了遙遠的銀河系中恐怖政權“第壹秩序”襲擊新共和國首都之後所發生的故事。影片在上周已經完成了全部後期制作，對比同等量級的商業電影來說堪稱神速。

黛茜·雷德利、約翰·波耶加、亞當·德賴弗、馬克·哈米爾、凱麗·費雪、奧斯卡·伊薩克等上壹部的主演將悉數回歸《星球大戰8》，影片也是“萊婭公主”凱麗·費雪生前拍攝的最後壹部作品，將於今年12月15日在北美上映。

DC超級英雄電影將“不強調相互關聯” DC娛樂高層談電影宇宙 “蝙超”失敗因“不夠輕鬆”

DC娛樂的總裁Diane Nelson和首席創意官艾夫·約翰斯日前接受了《Vulture》雜誌的專訪，談到了未來超級英雄電影開發的整體策略和大方向。相比漫威的超級英雄電影，起步較晚的DC在《蝙蝠俠大戰超人：正義黎明》和《X特遣隊》接連受挫之後，終於在今年憑借《神奇女俠》扳回壹城。在這場從2008年就開始的較量中，DC似乎也漸漸找到了感覺。對於未來的發展，DC具體有著怎樣的打算呢？

雖然《神奇女俠》大獲成功，但此前的DC戰績很難讓人釋懷。參考漫威創建電影宇宙的成功模式，DC在2013年以《超人：鋼鐵之軀》打頭陣也推出了自己的電影宇宙。但片中有些沈重的超人形象在評論界褒貶不一。隨後於2016年上映的《蝙蝠俠大戰超人：正義黎明》更是受到了嚴厲的批評，該片在全球獲得8.73億美元票房，遠低於同年漫威《美國隊長3》的11.53億票房。而接下來的《X特遣隊》雖然票房達到了7.45億美元，但爛番茄的新鮮度卻僅有25%。這些僅僅講述DC電影宇宙中幾個角色的故事都不那麼受歡迎，這個宇宙還要怎麼進行下去呢？

對此DC娛樂的總裁Diane Nelson表示並不擔心，她解釋DC和華納選取了壹種全新的策略。他們不會放棄整體的連續性，並會強調這些電影都處於同壹個空間的理念，但並不會拘泥於壹條完整的故事線和電影之間的關聯，“我們利用這種連續性以確保未來不會出現沒有意義的嘗試，但並不會強調壹條完整的故事線，或者是相互之間的關聯。”

值得肯定的是，這種嘗試已經取得了成功，《神奇女俠》就取得幾乎比任何壹部漫威電影都要高得評價。

“這部電影不是關於另壹部電影的，”對於DC的電影策略，約翰斯進壹步解釋道：“有些電影確實把角色聯系到壹起，就像《正義聯盟》，但還有像《海王》這樣的電影，我們要做的並不是要將它與其它電影聯系起來。以後妳會看到，DC的電影是壹個宇宙，但他們都來自於電影人們發自內心的創造。”

這也就意味這，DC的超級英雄電影將被分為兩類，壹類是《神奇女俠》這樣完全獨立與其它電

影的“獨立電影”，而另壹類則是在角色和故事之間建立聯系的作品。談到前者，約翰斯透露目前正在開發的大反派小醜的獨立電影將是這類電影的重頭項目，該片將由《宿醉》和《軍火販》編劇托德·菲利普斯執筆劇本。同時他還表示DC將為這類獨立電影建立壹個品牌，官方將很快宣布這壹“品牌”的名稱。

而目前正在計劃開發的獨立電影項目還包括壹些鮮為人知的DC漫畫人物，包括已經敲定由喬什·洛林出演的賞金獵人Jonah Hex，還有反英雄人物暴狼Lobo等。

在這次訪談中，他們還談到此前DC超級英雄電影所經歷的失敗。2008年8月在《黑暗騎士》上映之後，華納選擇“超人”作為他們的最新項目。當時的華納高管傑夫·羅賓諾夫向諾蘭尋求建議，後者提出了兩個導演選項，壹位是《黑天鵝》的導演達倫·阿羅諾夫斯基，另壹位則是紫克·施耐德。後來華納選擇了後者。施耐德當時剛剛執導了2009年上映的DC漫畫改編電影《守望者》，該片獲得兩極評價並且票房平庸，但不管怎樣，《超人：鋼鐵之軀》還是投入制作了。

後來2011年的《綠燈俠》也只是勉強收回了成本，在爛番茄上的評分也僅有可憐的27%，原本的續集計劃也被取消了，又壹個DC超級英雄系列就這樣掛掉了。

約翰斯談到在創作劇本的時候，他就擔心影片輕鬆幽默不足，他也曾經明確提出了這個問題，但當時的管理者對他的想法並沒有很在意。

那之後，在2013年的聖查戈漫展上，華納宣布了讓蝙蝠俠和超人互相攻擊的《蝙蝠俠大戰超人》這壹全新項目。同樣，約翰斯對於“輕鬆”、“明快”的要求依然被忽視了。那壹年華納娛樂的新亞裔總裁Kevin Tsujihara剛剛走馬上任，他比他的前任更看好超級英雄，甚至提出了雄心勃勃的在2014-2020年拍攝十部DC超級英雄電影的計劃，簡直可謂瘋狂。

對於未來DC超級英雄電影的發展方向，Nelson強調：“電影是非常重要的，但是它並不是全部。我們想要確保這些故事和人物在任何地方都能起作用，並且要以前所未有的方式。”
