Chinese media keep up drumbeat of criticism of U.S.

SHANGHAI (Reuters) - China's state media continued a barrage of criticism of the United States on Saturday as their tit-for-tat trade war escalated, while seeking to reassure readers the Chinese economy remains in strong shape.

Commentaries in the People's Daily, China's top newspaper, likened the United States to a bull in a China shop running roughshod over the rules of global trade and said that China was "still one of the best-performing, most promising and most tenacious economies in the world."

The commentaries come as trade tensions between the two countries intensify. China said this week it would put an additional 25 percent tariffs on $16 billion worth of U.S. imports in retaliation against levies on Chinese goods imposed by the United States.

One commentary accused the United States of "rudely trampling on international trade rules" and not taking into account China's lowering of tariffs and continued opening of its economy, among other things.

"People of insight are soberly aware that so-called 'America first' is actually naked self-interest, a bullying that takes advantage of its own strength, challenges the multilateral unilaterally, and uses might to challenge the rules," it read.

Another commentary argued that the Chinese economy was stable and was expected to remain so.

In the second half of this year, "comprehensive deepening of reforms will continuously produce benefits." It said China could take steps to boost domestic demand while continued to cut corporate taxes and fees.

With these and other policies, "the Chinese market will show an all-new charm," the commentary said.

A separate piece in the People's Daily quoted vice agriculture minister Han Jun saying that if a trade war broke out, many other countries were willing and "completely able to replace American agricultural products' share of the Chinese market."

It also quoted the vice minister as saying that the impact of American tariffs on China would be "extremely limited", but warned that were a trade war to escalate, the U.S. agriculture sector would feel its effects.

Earlier this week, Chinese state media accused the United States of a "mobster mentality" as it moved to implement additional tariffs on Chinese goods. Beijing had all the necessary means to fight back, the reports said.

U.S. tells China's HNA to sell stake in NYC building near Trump Tower: WSJ

(HONG KONG (Reuters) - The U.S. government has ordered Chinese conglomerate HNA Group Co Ltd [HNAIRC.UL] to sell its At the behest of CFIUS, HNA set up a blind trust and transferred its stake in the building to the trust that has its own board of directors, which have a fiduciary duty to the trust, not to HNA, the report said.

HNA is now in talks with potential buyers interested in the building to abide by the CFIUS order, though it was not given a deadline to sell, the report added.

CFIUS is an interagency U.S. government body whose chair is the Secretary of the U.S. Treasury Department. Asked on Saturday about the Journal report, a Treasury Department spokesman declined to comment, saying the department does not comment on specific CFIUS cases.

An HNA spokesman, asked by Reuters for comment on Saturday, referred to a statement

it gave on Thursday, which said that "there is no seizure or forced sale of 850 Third Avenue underway or pending."

"There are unique facts and circumstances regarding the location of this particular property that did not exist at the time of purchase which have raised certain concerns, and HNA Group is taking measured steps to address them," he said.

The group in 2016 acquired a 90 percent stake in the building, valued at $463 million, months before Donald Trump was elected U.S. president.

The building, located a few blocks from Trump Tower, houses the New York Police Department's 17th precinct, whose duties include security for Trump Tower, said the report. It is among a handful of investments HNA made on a $50 billion acquisition spree in recent years. Trump maintains a residence in Trump Tower.

The CFIUS order also comes as the cash-strapped Chinese group has been shedding non-core assets such as real estate to slash the massive debt it accumulated from its shopping spree.

Here's when Houston-area districts go back to school and when you can get free things for class

Julian Gill

Area schools are gearing up for the first day of classes with immunization clinics and backpack giveaways for students over the next few weeks.

Many districts in Harris County start on either Aug. 15, Aug. 20 or Aug. 27. Some districts also have earlier start dates for high school freshmen.

Houston ISD is hosting a "Back to School Extravaganza" on Aug. 17 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Delmar Stadium, 2020 Mangum Road. Free health screenings will be available, as well as free assistance with Medicaid applications, Children's Health Insurance Plan (CHIP) renewals and the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program.

A Houston-area judge has a message for parents that is resonating with people across his jurisdiction and beyond: Three steps to guarantee your child will go to jail. Montgomery County Pct. 1 Justice of the Peace Wayne Mack posted the video after several long days of probable cause hearings during Spring Break, when many young people were arrested in the county.

Hours after photo is posted on social media, Baytown burglary suspect arrested

A suspected serial car burglar was arrested Tuesday afternoon, just hours after authorities shared a photo of the man on social media in hopes that the public would recognize him, the Baytown Police Department announced in a news release Wednesday.

Cade Cates, 20, was taken into custody near the intersection of Interstate 10 and Beltway 8 in east Houston. A Baytown resident, Cates is a suspect in a string of "at least three" auto burglaries starting Monday night, police said on Facebook.

In the news release and on Facebook, Baytown police shared a photo of a pile of backpacks — belongings that Cates is suspected of nabbing from cars, police said.

The suspect captured in these surveillance videos is wanted in several car burglaries and an auto theft in Baytown, the police department reported on June 26, 2018. Other suspects appear to be working with this man, dropping him off in the tan passenger car shown.

Cates' burglaries occurred at the Goose Creek Landing, Pinehurst and Chaparral subdivisions, according to the news release. Cates, along with at least two other people who have not yet been identified or apprehended, are also suspected of stealing and damaging a purple Chevy Cobalt.

On Facebook, Baytown police offered a reward of up to $5,000 for anyone with information on the burglaries. Tips soon flooded in.

"Even on Facebook, people were recognizing him," said Lieutenant Steve Dorris, head of the Criminal Investigations Division for the City of Baytown Police Department.

Called New Clark City, The Urban Project
Is Envisioned To Be Smart, Sustainable
And Resilient To Disasters

The Philippines Is Planning To Build A "City Of The Future"

Compiled And Edited By John T. Robbins, Southern Daily Editor

The Philippines, home to Manila's stand-still traffic jams, is aiming to become known for the "city of the future."

Called New Clark City, the urban project is planned to be a high-tech green city promising science-fiction-worthy technology, from robots to drones to self-driving vehicles. It's located 120 kilometers outside the Philippine capital, and its investors hope it will be the first of its kind in the country: smart, sustainable and resilient to disasters.

Of course, many countries are aiming to build their own version of the city of the future, and the Philippines still has a long way to go in its economic development, so the project's financial future is not a certainty.

According to its lead developers, the project is mainly funded through public-private partnerships — a move necessary for the cash-strapped country.

The development could one day take some pressure off congested capital Manila, according to Singapore-based urban planning firm Surbana Jurong, one of the partners in the project.

The smart city aims to tap on up-and-coming technologies that would tackle issues arising from the increasing population density in the Southeast Asian country. "Driverless cars probably would be introduced into there, and therefore requirements for car parking will be lessened," Surbana Jurong CEO Heang Fine Wong told CNBC's "Street Signs."

The new urban space would become a "twin city" to Manila, he said. "You'll gradually see Manila becoming a different type of city, maybe more financial to support the New Clark City, and in New Clark City you'll see new technology companies coming through," he explained.

Attracting customers who would be willing to relocate to New Clark City from the country's capital will likely be a challenge. The Philippine government recently announced it is committed to moving some offices to New Clark City, but the main goal plan is for foreign investors to set up operations there, according to Wong.

New infrastructure projects, meanwhile, could bridge the distance between Manila and New Clark City, Wong said. A brand new railway line is being built by the Japan Overseas Infrastructure Investment Corporation for Transport & Urban Development. The train would reduce the travel time between the two cities to one hour from the current two to three hours.

The first phase of the project is slated to finish by 2022, but Wong said that the goal is to keep developing as technologies advance.

But technical hurdles would still need to be resolved said Wong. "All these things need to be planned. You need that network of communication. And also a cyber security network needs to be put in place," he said. (<https://www.cnbc.com>)
