U.S. breaks COVID-19 hospitalization record at over 132,000 as Omicron surges

Jan 10 (Reuters) - COVID-19 hospitalizations in the United States reached a record high on Monday, according to a Reuters tally, as a surge in infections caused by the highly contagious Omicron variant strains health systems in several states.

There were 132,646 people hospitalized with COVID, surpassing the record of 132,051 set in January last year.

Hospitalizations have increased steadily since late December, doubling in the last three weeks, as Omicron quickly overtook Delta as the dominant version of the virus in the United States.

Delaware, Illinois, Maine, Maryland, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Vermont, Virginia, Washington D.C., and Wisconsin have reported record levels of hospitalized COVID-19 patients recently, according to the Reuters analysis.

While potentially less severe, health officials have warned that the sheer number of infections caused by the Omicron variant could strain the hospital systems, some of which have already suspended elective procedures as they struggle to handle the surge of patients amid staff shortages.

The seven-day average for new cases has doubled in the last 10 days to 704,000. The United States has averaged over a half a million cases for the last six consecutive days, according to a Reuters tally.

Only seven states have not set records for COVID-19 cases in 2022 - Arizona, Idaho, Maine, Montana, North Dakota, Ohio and Wyoming, according to a Reuters tally.

Washington, D.C., is leading the country in new infections in the past week based on population, followed by Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Vermont.

Deaths are averaging 1,700 per day, up from about 1,400 in recent days but within levels seen earlier this winter.

T-cells from common colds can provide protection against COVID-19 -

LONDON, Jan 10 (Reuters) - High levels of T-cells from common cold coronaviruses can provide protection against COVID-19, an Imperial College London study published on Monday has found, which could inform approaches for second-generation vaccines.

Immunity against COVID-19 is a complex picture, and while there is evidence of waning antibody levels six months after vaccination, T-cells are also believed to play a vital role in providing protection.

The study, which began in September 2020, looked at levels of cross-reactive T-cells generated by previous common colds in 52 household contacts of positive COVID-19 cases shortly after exposure, to see if they went on to develop infection.

It found that the 26 who did not develop infection had significantly higher levels of those T-cells than people who did get infected. Imperial did not say how long protection from the T-cells would last.

"We found that high levels of pre-existing T cells, created by the body when infected with other human coronaviruses like the common cold, can protect against COVID-19 infection," study author Dr Rhia Kundu said.

The authors of the study, published in Nature Communications, said that the internal proteins of the SARS-CoV-2 virus which are targeted by the T-cells could offer an alternative target for vaccine makers.

Current COVID-19 vaccines target the spike protein, which mutates regularly, creating variants such as Omicron which lessen the efficacy of vaccines against symptomatic infection.

"In contrast, the internal proteins targeted by the protective T-cells we identified mutate much less," Professor Ajit Lalvani, co-author of the study, said.

"Consequently, they are highly conserved between the various SARS-CoV-2 variants, including Omicron. New vaccines that include these conserved, internal proteins would therefore induce broadly protective T cell responses that should protect against current and future SARS-CoV-2 variants."

VEALEE'S GLOBAL NOTES

We Have No Right To Be Pessimistic

In order to welcome the year of the Tiger we are preparing a series of outdoor celebrations. Due to the continued spread of the epidemic, it is necessary to postpone the in-person events, but we will still hold them by way of streaming live on TV and on the internet.

Over the past two years, Covid-19 has greatly interrupted the order of our society. As of today, the number of deaths worldwide has reached 5.48 million. The number of deaths in the United States has exceeded 836,000. The average number of infected people has reached at least over one-half million. This terrible number is making many health experts feel very helpless.

We are still seeing many long lines at the Covid-19 testing centers. The Covid-19 home testing kits promised by the government are still not fully distributed. More than 100, 000 people daily are still pouring into emergency rooms of hospitals all over the country.

Although President Biden has strongly urged and called on people repeatedly to get vaccinated, tens of millions of people still turn a blind eye to getting the shot. Why don't they understand that most of the people who are going to the hospital are people who are not vaccinated?

We still strongly appeal to everyone to take special self-protection measures, including wearing your masks, washing your hands frequently and avoid going to crowded public places.

Today there is more sad news from New York City. This morning, 19 people were swallowed up by a five-alarm fire in a large, 8-story apartment building.

This is really a very sad moment. This is a human tragedy for all of us. We still need to face reality, no matter how difficult it may become. We have no right to be pessimistic.

Omicron Infections Will Reach One Million Americans Daily Before Its Hits Its Peak

"I wouldn't be surprised if, on the whole, we're infecting up to a million people a day right now, and we're just picking up maybe a 10th of that or less than a 10th of that." - Dr. Scott Gottlieb, Former Head of the FDA. KEY POINTS

The highly transmissible omicron variant is driving a surge in Covid cases across the U.S.

However, Dr. Scott Gottlieb told CNBC on Friday he believes the coronavirus is significantly more widespread in the U.S. than official case counts reflect.

"I wouldn't be surprised if, on the whole, we're infecting up to a million people a day right now," the former FDA chief said.

Dr. Scott Gottlieb told CNBC last Friday he believes the coronavirus is significantly more widespread in the U.S. than official case counts reflect as the highly contagious delta variant sweeps the nation.

"I wouldn't be surprised if, on the whole, we're infecting up to a million people a day right now, and we're just picking up maybe a 10th of that or less than a 10th of that," the former Food and Drug Administration commissioner said in an interview on "Squawk Box." Gottlieb now serves on the board of Covid vaccine maker Pfizer. The current seven-day average of new daily coronavirus cases in the U.S. is roughly 67,000, according to a CNBC analysis of Johns Hopkins University data. That's up 53% compared with a week ago, as the country grapples with a surge in new infections driven largely by delta, first discovered in India and now

"What it reflects is a reality where you have a highly transmissible variant that's widely spread across the U.S. right now that's spreading mostly in a population that's either vaccinated and developing mild symptoms or no symptoms at all; or spreading in a younger population that's also less likely to develop symptoms because they're younger, healthier," Gottlieb said. when asked by "Squawk Box" cohost Andrew Ross Sorkin how the physician arrived at his "staggering" estimation of 1 million new infections a day.

ple who are showing up in the hospital are younger people. If that's where the infection is occurring, then there must be a lot more infection underneath the small numerator that's showing up in the hospital," added Gottlieb, who led the FDA from 2017 to 2019 in the Trump administration. He's become a closely watched voice during the pandemic, routinely appearing on CNBC and other media outlets to offer his analysis on the health crisis.

The highest seven-day day average of new Covid cases recorded in the U.S. was roughly 251,000 on Jan. 8, according to CNBC's analysis. Case counts had dropped off dramatically in the spring as the country's vaccination campaign picked up speed.

But in recent weeks, as U.S. cases again started to accelerate, Gottlieb has said a large number of coronavirus infections were likely going unreported, partly because the testing landscape is different now than at previous stages in the pandemic. In the early days, Gottlieb suggested the actual case counts were much higher than official tallies due to scarce testing resources. Now, he has said it's a different situation, where the discrepancy between case counts and true infection levels stems from people who remain asymptomatic or develop only mild symptoms not going to get tested. Additionally, Gottlieb previously told CNBC people can now complete at-home tests and those results are unlikely to make their way to health authorities and delta-driven infections than others believe. "This delta wave will pass, probably at some point in September," he predicted. (Courtesy cnbc.com) Related

Major Medical Groups Call for Mandatory COVID-19 Vaccinations for

All Health Workers Dozens of major medical groups, including the American Medical Association and the American Academy of Pediatrics, are calling for employers to mandate COVID-19 vaccines for all health care workers. "Our health care organizations and societies advocate that all health care and longterm care employers require their workers to receive the COVID-19 vaccine. This is the logical fulfillment of the ethical commitment of all health care workers to put patients as well as residents of long-term care facilities first and take all steps necessary to ensure their health and well-being," the groups wrote in a July 26 statement (pdf).

A health care worker administers a shot of the Moderna COVID-19 vaccine to a woman at a pop-up vaccination site operated by SOMOS Community Care during the COVID-19 pandemic in Manhattan in New York City, on Jan. 29, 2021. (Mike Segar/Reuters) They argued that because of the "Delta" variant, which is believed to be more contagious, and more reports of COVID-19 hospitalizations, health care settings should make vaccines mandatory. An increase in vaccinations, the statement says, will prevent the possibility of more lockdowns or other COVID-19-related orders. Their statement made no mention of individuals who had already contracted COVID-19 but recovered and developed natural immunity. Because health care workers come into frequent contact with COVID-19 cases, previous studies have shown they are more likely to have contracted the virus. Another study from the National Institutes of Health showed that those who recovered from the virus had a "lasting immunity" to the pathogen because, as the agency noted, "after people recover from infection with a virus, the immune system retains a memory of it" and "immune cells and proteins that circulate in the body can recognize and kill the pathogen if it's encountered again, protecting against disease and reducing illness severity.'

Meanwhile, a number of workers in the health care field aren't vaccinated, according to data collected by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services and analyzed by LeadingAge, reported the Washington Post. About 38 percent of nursing home staff, for example, weren't vaccinated as of July 11, the data shows.

A recent analysis by WebMD and Medscape revealed that an estimated 25 percent of hospital workers who had regular contact with patients weren't fully vaccinated. About 56 percent of Americans aged 12 and older are fully vaccinated, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in July.

Ezekiel Emanuel, a University of Pennsylvania bioethicist who organized the joint statement released on July 26, told the Washington Post that he believes mandating vaccines among health care workers will boost the overall uptake in Americans getting the vaccine.

"Despite everything—cajoling, making access readily available at any pharmacy, making it free, having the president plead—all of this hasn't really moved the needle very much in the nation," he told the paper on July 26.

Weeks ago, the largest union of health care workers in the United States, 1199SEIU, said it opposed mandatory COVID-19 vaccines for employees.

'Whether there is a legal challenge that we can make, or whether it's just a pure organizational challenge that we can make, we are not going to just give in," George Gresham, the head of the union, told local news website Gothamist in June. The Epoch Times has contacted the 1199SEIU for comment.

It comes as protests erupted across the UK, Ireland, Italy, France, Greece, and elsewhere over the past weekend over vaccine mandates. European leaders have proposed vaccine passport-like systems to mandate that people show whether they're vaccinated or have tested negative for COVID-19 before entering certain businesses or public spaces. ## How Nations Of The World Handle The Coronavirus Health Crisis Impacts Their Tourism Favorability

KEY POINTS

Tourism Policy Responses to the coronavirus (COVID-19)

The tourism economy has been heavily hit by the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, and measures introduced to contain its spread. Depending on the duration of the crisis, revised scenarios indicate that the potential shock could range between a 60-80% decline in the international tourism economy in 2020. Beyond immediate measures to support the tourism sector, countries are also shifting to develop recovery measures. These include considerations on lifting travel restrictions, restoring traveller confidence and rethinking the tourism sector for the future.

The coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic has triggered an unprecedented crisis in the tourism economy, given the immediate and immense shock to the sector. Revised OECD estimates on the COVID-19 impact point to 60% decline in international tourism in 2020. This could rise to 80% if recovery is delayed until December. International tourism within specific geographic-regions (e.g. in the European Union) is expected to rebound first. Domestic tourism, which accounts for around 75% of the tourism economy in OECD countries, is expected to recover more quickly. It offers the main chance for driving recovery, particularly in countries, regions and cities where the sector supports many jobs and businesses. The impact of the crisis is being felt throughout the entire tourism ecosystem, and reopening and rebuilding destinations will require a joined up ap-

Lifting travel restrictions and working with businesses to access liquidity supports, apply new health protocols for safe travel, and help to diversify their markets. Restoring traveller confidence and stimulating demand with new safe and clean labels for the sector, information apps for visitors and domestic tourism promotion campaigns. Preparing comprehensive tourism recovery plans, to rebuild destinations, encourage innovation and investment, and rethink the tourism sector. These actions are essential, but to reopen the tourism economy successfully and get businesses up and running, more needs to be done in a coordinated way

Governments need to already consider the longer term implications of the crisis, while staying ahead of the digital curve, supporting the low carbon transition, and promoting the structural transformation needed to build a stronger, more sustainable and resilient tourism economy. # 体斯頓中國人活動中心 民眾冒雨前來接種疫苗

(楊德清 報導)今天哈里斯郡公共健康衛生署再次聯合休 斯頓中國人活動中心為廣大民衆免費接種新冠疫苗。任何5歲以 上的居民,不限郡縣,都可以不用預約前來接種輝瑞第一劑、第 二劑或加強針疫苗。接種免費,不需要提供身份證明、健康保險 或移民信息。加強針疫苗與前兩針來自不同的廠家也可以。打第 一針者,還將會通過郵件收到一張$100禮品卡。

若沒有攜帶以前疫苗卡者,出示身份證,郡代表會在系統裡 幫忙查到以前接種的記錄,另給一張新卡以標記新的記錄。疫苗 卡在今後很多場合都有重要用途,建議民眾要像保管身份證件一 樣重要,妥善保管,而且照相留底,以防丢失或需要出示時抓瞎

疫苗接種醫護人員非常專業,技術嫻熟,筆者今日接種加強 針時親身感受,打針時沒有任何疼痛,還沒有來得及害怕,已經 打完了,筆者讚揚護士時她高興地說已經打過很多了,難怪無痛 技術這麼好。過後揭開創口貼時看了看,創口貼上沒有留下任何 血跡,就是說都沒有出血,技術實在太高了。

民衆冒著小雨,絡繹不絕地趕來接種疫苗,粗略估計有60 人以上前來接種疫苗。
