Biden orders nearly 3,000 U.S. troops to Eastern Europe to counter Russia

WASHINGTON/MOSCOW, Feb 2 (Reuters) - The United States will send nearly 3,000 extra troops to Poland and Romania to reinforce Eastern European NATO allies in the face of what Washington describes as a Russian threat to invade Ukraine, U.S. officials said on Wednesday.

Russia, for its part, signalled it was in no mood for compromise by mocking Britain, calling Prime Minister Boris Johnson "utterly confused" and ridiculing what it said was the "stupidity and ignorance" of British politicians.

Moscow has massed more than 100,000 troops near Ukraine's borders. It denies any plan to invade its neighbour but says it could take unspecified military measures if its demands are not met, including a promise by NATO never to admit Kyiv. read more

A Stryker squadron of around 1,000 U.S. service members based in Vilseck, Germany would be sent to Romania, the Pentagon said, while around 1,700 service members, mainly from the 82nd Airborne Division, would deploy from Fort Bragg, North Carolina, to Poland. Three hundred other service members will move from Fort Bragg to Germany.

The objective, Pentagon spokesperson John Kirby said, was to send a "strong signal" to President Vladimir Putin "and frankly, to the world, that NATO matters to the United States and it matters to our allies".

"We know that he also bristles at NATO, about NATO. He's made no secret of that. We are making it clear that we're going to be prepared to defend our NATO allies if it comes to that. Hopefully it won't come to that."

Poland's Defence Minister Mariusz Blaszczak said the U.S. deployment was a strong sign of solidarity. NATO Secretary-General Jens Stoltenberg also welcomed it, saying the alliance's response to Russia was defensive and proportional. read more

Efforts to reach a diplomatic solution have faltered, with Western countries describing Russia's main demands as non-starters and Moscow showing no sign of withdrawing them.

French President Emmanuel Macron said he would discuss the crisis with U.S. President Joe Biden in the coming hours and did not rule out travelling to Russia to meet with Putin. The priority was to avoid tensions rising, Macron said.

The Kremlin said Putin told Johnson that NATO was not responding adequately to its security concerns. Johnson's office said he had told Putin an incursion would be a "tragic miscalculation" and they had agreed to apply a "spirit of dialogue".

On Tuesday Johnson had accused Russia of holding a gun to Ukraine's head, drawing caustic remarks from Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov before the call with Putin. Johnson had rescheduled the call to answer questions in parliament about accusations his staff violated COVID-19 lockdown rules.

"Russia and President Putin are open to communicating with everyone," Peskov said. "Even to someone who is utterly confused, he is prepared to provide exhaustive explanations."

Russia's Foreign Ministry mocked Johnson's foreign secretary, Liz Truss, for saying Britain was sending supplies to its "Baltic allies across the Black Sea" - two bodies of water that are on opposite sides of Europe.

"Mrs Truss, your knowledge of history is nothing compared to your knowledge of geography," Russian Foreign Ministry spokesperson Maria Zakharova wrote in a blog post. "If anyone needs saving from anything, it's the world, from the stupidity and ignorance of British politicians."

BEAR VS FOX

Nor did the Kremlin reserve its wit for Britain. Noting that White House spokesperson Jen Psaki had compared Moscow to a fox shouting from the top of a chicken coop, Peskov said: "Actually, it's always traditional to compare Russia to a bear. But a bear can't stand on a chicken coop. It is too big and heavy."

A day earlier, Putin laid out a worldview in which Russia was being forced to protect itself from U.S. aggression. In his first public comments about the Ukraine crisis this year, he said Washington was trying to lure Moscow into war by insisting on the possibility Ukraine could join NATO.

"It's already clear now ... that fundamental Russian concerns were ignored," Putin said on Tuesday. Describing a scenario in which Ukraine joins NATO and then attacks Russian forces, he asked: "Are we supposed to go to war with the NATO bloc? Has anyone given that any thought? Apparently not."

Washington has said it will not send troops to Ukraine itself to shield it from a Russian attack, but would impose financial sanctions on Moscow and send arms to help Ukrainians defend themselves. read more Russia, still Europe's main energy supplier despite being under U.S. and EU sanctions since annexing Crimea from Ukraine in 2014, brushes off additional sanctions as an empty threat.

The Voices And Shouts Of Our Asian-American Community

Asian–American communities and citizens living in Canada and the U. S. are happily celebrating the coming of the Year of the Tiger in various ways.

Due to the Covid pandemic, whether we meet through the internet or outdoors, regardless of scope, it represents our promotion of our heritage and shows that we are truly a multi–ethnic nation.

Over the last hundred years many of our countrymen have left their hometowns to pursue a better life. With the spirit of hard work we have made great contributions to local communities. Today when you travel to major U. S. cities you will find Chinatowns full of Chinese business and culture.

"Amazingly High" Immune Response Discovered In Fully Jabbed People Who Also Caught The Disease

Study: How To Get 'Super Immunity' To Covid

After the scientists exposed the volunteers' blood samples to the Alpha, Beta, and Delta variants of Covid-19, they discovered that the combination of vaccine and natural immunity creates antibodies "at least 10 times more potent - than immunity generated by vaccination alone."

As a result, the scientists concluded that "additional antigen exposure from natural infection substantially boosts the quantity, quality, and breadth" of immune response to the disease, "regardless of whether it occurs before or after vaccination."

"In either case, you will get a really, really robust immune response – amazingly high," co-senior author Fikadu Tafesse, who is an assistant professor of molecular microbiology and immunology in the OHSU School of Medicine, said.

immunity, the CDC stressed that "vaccination remains the safest strategy" for preventing Covid-19 infections. This is because "having Covid the first time carries with it significant risks," study co-author Dr. Eli Rosenberg told CNN. Likewise Dr. Erica Pan, state epidemiologist for the California Department of Public Health, recommended that even those with prior infection get vaccinated to ensure they get a layer of "additional protection."

The study's conclusion contradicts earlier claims from top US health officials. At the beginning of the Delta outbreak last May, White House Chief Medical Advisor Dr. Anthony Fauci insisted that vaccines "are better than the traditional response you get from natural infection." WHO Says, 'No Evidence'

For Boosting Children And Teens The World Health Organization says Covid-19 boosters should be a priority for the highest-risk populations instead

There is currently no evidence that Covid-19 booster shots should be administered to healthy children and adolescents, the WHO's top scientists said. The organization is still trying to work out the appropriate booster schedule.

"The aim is to protect the most vulnerable, to protect those at highest risk of severe disease and dying, those are our elderly population, immunocompromised with underlying conditions and also health care workers," WHO chief scientist Dr. Soumya Swaminathan said at a news briefing on Tuesday, adding that "there's no evidence right now" for administering them to otherwise healthy children and

The WHO's Strategic Advisory Group of Experts (SAGE) on Immunization will meet later this week to consider how governments should think about boosters, Swaminathan said.

Dr. Michael Ryan, the WHO's executive director for health emergencies, said the organization hasn't figured out yet how many doses people may ultimately need.

"I think people do have a certain fear out there that this booster thing is going to be like every two or three months and everyone's going to have to go and get a booster. And I don't think we have the answer to that yet," Ryan said.

SAGE may eventually redefine how many doses will make up the "primary series" of shots, Ryan added, explaining that most healthy people may need just two, but the elderly or immunocompromised could require

Last week, the WHO's Technical Advisory Group on Covid-19 Vaccine Composition (TAG-Co-VAC) said that a vaccination strategy "based on repeated booster doses of the original vaccine composition is unlikely to be appropriate or sustainable," urging member countries to prioritize primary vaccinations for high-risk groups over universal boosting.

TAG-Co-VAC experts also said that current vaccines focus on reducing severe disease and protecting healthcare systems, while there is an ongoing need for vaccines that prevent infection and transmission of the virus.

WHO Experts Criticize 'Repeated Booster' Strategy The World Health Organization's vaccine advisory body has voiced concerns about using current Covid-19 vaccines as boosters

Using the original vaccines against Covid-19 as boosters against emerging variants is the wrong approach, said a WHO expert group, adding that the world needs new vaccines that protect against infection and transmission.

'A vaccination strategy based on repeated booster doses of the original vaccine composition is unlikely to be appropriate or sustainable," the Technical Advisory Group on Covid-19 Vaccine Composition (TAG-Co-VAC) said on Tuesday.

While some countries may recommend boosters, "the immediate priority for the world is accelerating access to the primary vaccination, particularly for groups at greater risk of developing severe disease," the group added, pointing out the "need for equity in access to vaccines across countries to achieve global public health goals."

While the currently available vaccines focus on "reducing severe disease and death, as well as protecting health systems," there is a need for vaccines "that have high impact on prevention of infection and transmission." Until such iabs are developed, the existing vaccines may need to be updated to better target emerging virus variants such as Omicron, the group said.

Developers should work to create vaccines that "elicit immune responses that are broad, strong, and long-lasting in order to reduce the need for successive booster doses," the TAG-Co-VAC urged.

On Tuesday, the EU drug regulator EMA's head of Biological Health Threats and Vaccines Strategy said they don't yet have enough data to recommend a second booster - the fourth jab so far - even as some countries urged such a move.

Marco Cavaleri said they were "rather concerned about a strategy that entangles repeat vaccination within a short term," adding that "we cannot really continuously give a booster dose every three-four months."

The WHO said that Omicron could infect more than half of the EU population over the next two months and urged the bloc's authorities not to treat the virus as endemic. (Courtesy

Decades After Polio, An Iron Lung Is "It's like being buried alive almost, you know — it's so scarv." Lillard savs. Being affected by polio at such a young age has meant Lillard hasn't been able to

On June 8, 1953, Martha Lillard celebrated her fifth birthday with a party at an amusement park in Oklahoma. A little over a week had polio or post-polio syndrome either later, she woke up with a sore throat and a weaned themselves off the machines or pain in her neck. Polio is a potentially life-threatening disease, once among the world's most feared. In the late 1940s, polio disabled an average of 35,000 people in the U.S. every year.

The machines are giant ventilators about 7 feet long. Patients lie inside with just their heads resting outside; a seal around the patient's neck creates a vacuum. Bellows at the base of the device do the work of a human diaphragm — they create negative pressure so the user's lungs fill with air, and positive pressure allowing the person

Martha Lillard says she worries about running out of replacement parts to make her iron lung respirator function properly. (Photo courtesy of Martha

Wear on parts is her main issue now. The belts need to be replaced every few weeks, the cot inside every six months, the motor every 12 years or so. Her most immediate need is collars. The collars create the critical airtight seal around the neck. Each one lasts only for a few months. And she has bought all the back stock of collars from places that don't produce them anymore.

"That's the main thing I'm having a hard time with, because I try to stretch out, make these collars last longer," Lillard says. "And when they start deteriorating, it gets harder and harder to breathe as they leak more."

She has only a handful of collars left. "I really am desperate," she says. "That's the most scary thing in my life right now — is not finding anybody that can make those collars."

Today, Lillard spends much of her time alone. She paints, watches old Hollywood movies and takes care of her beagles. She has been mostly isolating throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, seeing her sister, Cindy, and her brother-in-law, Daryl, in the evenings.

age has meant Lillard hasn't been able to have all the experiences others have had. She attended school from home for much of her childhood and couldn't participate in most extracurricular activities — she still remembers longing to go camping with her siblings. She was not able to have children or hold a steady job because of her physical limitations.

Although some of her life experiences were limited, Lillard thanks a childhood friend named Karen Rapp for teaching her to appreciate small things. Together, they observed ants and built little villages of grass huts.

"There's much more to see if you really look for it," she says.

And she's grateful for the iron lung. "It's what sustains me. It's what heals me.

It's what allows me to breathe the next day," Lillard says. "I look at it as a friend, as a very dear friend." (Courtesy npr.org) Related Jonas Salk Creator Of The Salk Vaccine Jonas Edward Salk (Born Jonas Salk; October 28, 1914 - June 23, 1995) was an American virologist and medical researcher who developed one of the first successful polio vaccines. He was born in New York City and attended the City College of New York and New York University School of Medicine.

Dr. Jonas Salk In 1947, Salk accepted a professorship the School of Medicine at the University Pittsburgh. It was there that he undertook a project to determine the number of different types of poliovirus, starting in 1948. For the next seven years, Salk devoted himself towards developing a vaccine against po-

Salk was immediately hailed as a "miracle worker" when the vaccine's success was first made public in April 1955, and chose to not patent the vaccine or seek any profit from it in order to maximize its global distribution. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the University of Pittsburgh looked into patenting the vaccine but, since Salk's techniques were not novel, their patent attorney said, "if there were any patentable novelty to be found in this phase it would lie within an extremely narrow scope and would be of doubtful onas Salk wrote about the polio vaccine trial project, "the most elaborate program of its kind in history, involving 20,000 physicians and public health officers, 64,000 school personnel, and 220,000 volunteers," with over 1.8 million school children participating in the trial. A 1954 Gallup poll showed that more Americans knew about the polio field trials than could give the full name of the current U.S. president.

An immediate rush to vaccinate began in both the United States and around the world. Many countries began polio immunization campaigns using Salk's vaccine, including Canada, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, West Germany, the Netherlands, Switzerland, and Belgium. By 1959. the Salk vaccine had reached about 90 countries. An attenuated live oral polio vaccine was developed by Albert Sabin, coming into commercial use in 1961. Less than 25 years after the release of Salk's vaccine, domestic transmission of polio had been completely eliminated in the United States.

Salk in 1955 at the University of Pittsburgh

In 1963, Salk founded the Salk Institute for Biological Studies in La Jolla, California, is today a center for medical and scientific research. He continued to conduct research and publish books in his later years, focusing in his last years on the search for a vaccine against HIV. Salk also campaigned vigorously for mandatory vaccination throughout the rest of his life, calling the universal vaccination of children against disease a "moral commitment". Salk's personal papers are today stored in Geisel Library at the University of California, San Diego. (Courtesy Wiki-
