Elon Musk encourages Twitter engineers to fly in for in-person meetings

Nov 18 (Reuters) - Elon Musk emailed Twitter staff on Friday asking that any employees who write software code report to the 10th floor of the office in San Francisco early afternoon, according to an email reviewed by Reuters.

The billionaire said in a follow-up email, “If possible, I would appreciate it if you could fly to SF to be present in person,” adding he would be at the company’s headquarters until midnight and would return Saturday morning.

He said the engineers should report at 2 p.m. on Friday.

The emails came a day after hundreds of Twitter employees were estimated to have decided to quit the beleaguered social media company following a Thursday deadline from Musk that staffers sign up for “long hours at high intensity,” or leave.

The company had told employees it would close its offices and cut badge access until Monday, according to two sources, and it was not immediately known whether the headquarters reopened.

Musk ordered employees to email him a summary of what their software code has “achieved” in the past six months, “along with up to 10 screenshots of the most salient lines of code.”

“There will be short, technical interviews that allow me to better understand the Twitter tech stack,” Musk wrote in one of the emails.

Musk said earlier this week that some Tesla engineers were assisting in evaluating Twitter’s engineering teams, but he said it was on a “voluntary basis” and “after hours.”

He said he would try to speak with remote employees by video, and that only people who could not physically get to the company’s headquarters or have a family emergency would be excused.

In his first email to Twitter employees this month, Musk said: “We are also changing Twitter policy such that remote work is no longer allowed, unless you have a specific exception.”

“Managers will send the exceptions lists to me for review and approval.”

Musk’s first three weeks as Twitter’s owner have been marked by rapid change and chaos. He quickly fired Twitter’s previous CEO and other senior leaders and then laid off half its staff earlier this month.

Musk wrote on Twitter late on Thursday that he was not worried about resignations as “the best people are staying.”

FBI director ‘very concerned’ by Chinese ‘police stations’ in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov 17 (Reuters) - The United States is deeply concerned about the Chinese government setting up unauthorized 'police stations' in U.S. cities to possibly pursue influence operations, FBI Director Christopher Wray told lawmakers on Thursday.

Safeguard Defenders, a Europe-based human rights organization, published a report in September revealing the presence of dozens of Chinese police "service stations" in major cities around the world, including New York.
Republicans in Congress have requested answers from the Biden administration about their influence.

The report said the stations were an extension of Beijing's efforts to pressure some Chinese nationals or their relatives abroad to return to China to face criminal charges. It also linked them to activities of China's United Front Work Department, a Communist Party body charged with spreading its influence and propaganda overseas.

Republicans identify 42 Biden administration officials they want to testify
Western New York eyes weekend deluge of lake-effect snow
"I'm very concerned about this. We are aware of the existence of these stations," Wray told a U.S. Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee hearing, acknowledging but declining to detail the FBI's investigative work on the issue.

"But to me, it is outrageous to think that the Chinese police would attempt to set up shop, you know, in New York, let's say, without proper coordination. It violates sovereignty and circumvents standard judicial and law enforcement cooperation processes."

Wray, asked by Republican Senator Rick Scott if such stations violated U.S. law, said the FBI was "looking into the legal parameters."

Republicans in the U.S. House of Representatives, including Greg Murphy and Mike Waltz, sent letters to the Justice Department in October asking if President Joe Biden's administration was investigating such stations and arguing they could be used to intimidate U.S. residents of Chinese origin.

China's embassy in Washington did not respond immediately to a request for comment.

Earlier this month, its foreign ministry denied it had such stations in the Netherlands after a probe by Dutch authorities. China said they were offices to help Chinese citizens renew documents.

We Appreciate All Of Your Support

On behalf of the ITC 20th Anniversary Gala Host Committee, we would like to sincerely thank you all for your steadfast support and participation in the Gala.

This event was a great success due to your valuable contribution. The ITC could not do it without the generous support of our sponsors.

We are so honored that Secretary Chao made a special trip from DC to show her support for us.

Mayor Turner has announced November 11, 2022, as Houston International Trade Center Day. Over the last 20 years the ITC has hosted many educational and community programs in fulfillment of its vision and mission.

Our dear friend, Congressman Al Green and Sheila Jackson Lee also brought their remarks and proclamations to the Gala. We sincerely thank them for their support over the years.

On this day, we just are so happy and grateful for all of your support. Thank you all again.

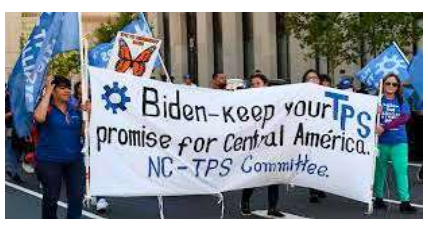
U.S. Extends Temporary Legal Status Of 337,000 Immigrants Through 2024 Amid Court Battle

Compiled And Edited By John T. Robbins, Southern Daily Editor

Activists and immigrants with temporary protected status march toward the White House on Feb. 23, 2021, in Washington, D.C., in a call for Congress and the Biden administration to pass immigration reform legislation.

The Biden administration on Thursday said it would extend the deportation protections and work permits of an estimated 337,000 immigrants from El Salvador, Nicaragua, Nepal and Honduras through the summer of 2024, preempting a court decision that could have led to their legal status expiring next year.
The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) said in a notice that it will allow immigrants from these countries to continue living and working in the U.S. legally under the Temporary Protected Status (TPS) policy until at least June 2024. Created in 1990, TPS is a deportation relief program the U.S. can extend to nationals of countries beset by armed conflict, natural disasters or other humanitarian crises.
Thursday's announcement comes two weeks after court negotiations between the Biden administration and lawyers representing TPS holders broke down, paving the way for the Trump administration's decision to terminate the legal status of hundreds of thousands of immigrants enrolled in the program to take effect.



But in its notice on Thursday, DHS said immigrants from El Salvador, Nicaragua, Nepal and Honduras would get to keep their work permits and deportation protections at least 365 days after the department is allowed to end the TPS programs in question, or until June 30, 2024 — whichever date comes later.
The June 30, 2024, extension also applies to certain Haitian and Sudanese immigrants, but they are also eligible to apply for work permits and deportation protections under expansions of TPS programs for Haiti and Sudan announced by the Biden administration that are not affected by the litigation in federal court.
"DHS is well aware of the importance of Temporary Protected Status (TPS) in providing stability to people's lives," a DHS spokesperson said in a statement to CBS News on Thursday.
As of the end of 2021, 241,699 Salvadorans, 76,737 Hondurans, 14,556 Nepalis and 4,250 Nicaraguans were enrolled in the TPS program, according to U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) data.
TPS allows beneficiaries to live and work in the country without fear of deportation, but it does not provide them a path to permanent residency or citizenship. Those who lose their TPS protections could become eligible for deportation, unless they apply for, and are granted, another immigration benefit.

As part of its immigration crackdown, the Trump administration tried to terminate TPS programs for hundreds of thousands of immigrants from El Salvador, Haiti, Nicaragua, Sudan, Honduras and Nepal. But those terminations were blocked in federal courts by lawsuits that argued the terminations were rooted in racial animus and not properly justified
In September 2020, however, the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals gave the Trump administration the greenlight to end the TPS programs, saying courts could not review DHS decisions related to the policy. The ruling, however, did not take effect, because attorneys representing the TPS holders asked the court to consider rehearing the case "en banc," or with all active judges participating.
The Biden administration, which pledged to prevent the deportation of TPS holders to "unsafe" countries, entered into court negotiations to try to settle the litigation over the Trump-era termination decisions. It also formally extended the TPS programs for immigrants from Haiti and Sudan.
After a year of court negotiations, attorneys for TPS holders announced on Oct. 26 that they had failed to reach a settlement with the Biden administration. Both parties are now waiting for the 9th Circuit to decide whether it will grant or deny the request to rehear the case.
If the request is denied, the 9th Circuit's ruling from September 2020 will become binding, unless the Supreme Court intervenes.

Ahilan Arulanantham, one of the attorneys representing TPS holders in the litigation, said Thursday's announcement was an "important victory." But he called it an "interim one."
"Despite today's extension, the Biden administration is still defending Trump's racist TPS termination decisions in court, which unless the Biden administration acts, will remain on the books," said Arulanantham, the co-director of the Center for Immigration Law and Policy at the UCLA School of Law.
Arulanantham called on the Biden administration to create new TPS programs for El Salvador, Nicaragua, Nepal and Honduras, just like it has done for Haiti and Sudan.
Democratic lawmakers have advocated for TPS holders to be allowed to apply for permanent residency as part of a proposal to legalize unauthorized immigrants who have lived in the U.S. for years. Many TPS holders have lived in the country for over two decades. The TPS program for El Salvador, for example, began in 2001.
But congressional Democrats and Republicans have not been able to forge an agreement on immigration for decades, and GOP lawmakers have increasingly opposed creating legalization programs, absent changes to U.S. border policy. (Courtesy https://www.cbsnews.com/news/)

Venezuelan Migration To The U.S. Border Decreased In October, But Overall Migrant Arrivals Remained High

Washington, DC — Recently announced U.S. immigration policies led to a significant reduction in Venezuelan migration to the U.S.-Mexico border in Oct., but overall migrant apprehensions remained high, propelled by the arrival of tens of thousands of Cubans and Nicaraguans, federal statistics released late Monday show.
U.S. immigration officials encountered migrants 230,678 times along the southern border last month, a 1.9% increase from September, according to the Customs and Border Protection data. Roughly 19% of those encounters involved repeat crossings by migrants who had been previously processed by U.S. border agents.
Border Patrol recorded 204,273 apprehensions of migrants who entered the U.S. illegally, a slight decrease from Sept., while the Office of Field Operations, another CBP agency, processed 26,405 migrants at official ports of entry, where the Biden administration has been admitting certain asylum-seekers.

Venezuelan migrants were processed 22,044 times in Oct., a 35% decrease from the record high of 33,804 reported the previous month. The drop comes after the U.S. on Oct. 12 began expelling Venezuelans to Mexico under a public health order known as Title 42. The Biden administration also launched a program to allow up to 24,000 Venezuelans to enter the U.S. legally if they have U.S.-based financial sponsors.
But the drop in Venezuelan migration was offset by the arrival of 28,848 Cubans and 20,917 Nicaraguans, a monthly record for the latter nationality. Mexico has generally not allowed the U.S. to expel Cubans or Nicaraguans to its territory, prompting U.S. officials to allow most of them to seek asylum inside the country, since Cuba and Nicaragua do not accept regular U.S. expulsion flights.
Troy Miller, who was named acting CBP commissioner last weekend following the resignation of Chris Magnus, said migration from Cuba and Nicaragua continued to be at a "historic high" due to political and economic turmoil in both countries, which are ruled by repressive regimes.
"This reflects the challenge that is gripping the hemisphere, as displaced populations flee authoritarianism, corruption, violence, and poverty," Miller said in his statement.

The tally of unique migrants from Cuba, Nicaragua and Venezuela in Oct. collectively exceeded the number of migrants from Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador taken into U.S. border custody, continuing an unprecedented demographic shift that the U.S. has struggled to respond to, according to CBP calculations.
The U.S. carried out over 78,000 migrant expulsions in Oct. — including 5,855 expulsions of Venezuleans. Those expelled under Title 42 are barred from seeking asylum, which U.S. law allows migrants to request if they are on U.S. soil, regardless of whether they entered the country unlawfully.
Migrants who are not expelled under Title 42 are processed under U.S. immigration law. Generally, that means they are transferred by Border Patrol to another agency, released with instructions to see a judge or an immigration office or processed under a fast-track deportation process known as expedited removal.
While the U.S. struggles to expel many migrants who are not from Mexico or Central America because of diplomatic and logistical reasons, the Biden administration has exempted several groups from Title 42, including unaccompanied children and asylum-seekers identified as vulnerable.

The numbers released Monday show the migration wave to the U.S.-Mexico border during President Biden's administration continues to defy pre-pandemic seasonal patterns, during which migrant arrivals peaked in the spring and declined in the hot summer months and the fall.
The statistics also suggest that migrant encounters along the southern border will continue to resemble, or perhaps surpass, the record levels reported in fiscal year 2022, when U.S. immigration officials encountered migrants nearly 2.4 million times, an all-time high. Covid Public Health Emergency And Flu Outbreak Attack The Nation

U.S. Will Keep Covid Public Health Emergency In Place Until At Least Mid January

Compiled And Edited By John T. Robbins, Southern Daily Editor

Key Points

HHS did not alert states of any intent to lift the public health emergency by a Friday notification deadline, which means it will remain place at least through mid January.

The public health emergency, first declared in January 2020 and renewed every 90 days since, has had a vast impact on the U.S. health-care system.

The declaration has dramatically expanded public health insurance through Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program.

The U.S. Covid public health emergency will remain in place past Jan. 11 after the federal government did not notify states or health-care provides on Friday of any intent to lift the declaration.
Health and Human Services Secretary Secretary Xavier Becerra has promised to give stakeholders 60 days notice before lifting the emergency declaration so they can prepare for a return to normal operations. In October, HHS extended the public health emergency until Jan. 11.
HHS did not provide a 60-day notice on Friday, which was the deadline to alert states and health-care providers if the federal government planned to lift the declaration on Jan. 11, according to a Health and Human Services spokesperson. Since HHS did not provide notification, the emergency will remain in place for at least another 60 days until mid January.
Public health officials are expecting another Covid surge this winter as people gather more indoors where the virus spreads easier. The future also remains uncertain as more immune evasive omicron subvariants become dominant in the U.S.

How the U.S. fares against Covid this fall and winter will help determine whether the emergency needs to be renewed again moving forward, Becerra told reporters in October.
The public health emergency, first declared in January 2020 and renewed every 90 days since, has had a vast impact on the U.S. health-care system. The declaration has dramatically expanded public health insurance through Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program. Enrollment in these programs increased 26% during the pandemic to a record of more than 89 million people as of June.
HHS has estimated that as many as 15 million people could lose Medicaid or CHIP once the programs return to normal operations.
The emergency declaration has also given hospitals and other health-care providers more flexibility in how they operate. (Courtesy https://www.cnbc.com/)

U.S. Flu Epidemic Is Official

The U.S. is officially in a flu epidemic, federal health officials say. Preparations Underway to deploy troops and ventilators if necessary

The U.S. has "crossed the epidemic threshold" when it comes to flu, federal health officials said Friday, as they outlined plans to deploy troops and FEMA personnel, and supplies like ventilators, if needed, in response to a nationwide surge of respiratory illnesses that also includes RSV and COVID.

U.S. flu hospitalizations are higher now than they've been at this point in every other flu season since 2010-2011, officials with the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said on a press call. The country is seeing a resurgence of non-COVID respiratory illnesses like flu, RSV, rhinovirus, and enterovirus, with background levels of COVID, according to Dr. José Romero, director of the National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases.
Federal officials are monitoring hospital capacity throughout the U.S. and are "standing by to deploy additional personnel and supplies as needed," Dawn O'Connell, assistant secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services' Administration for Strategic Preparedness and Response, said on the call.

If a state or jurisdiction exceeds its ability to care for patients, a team from the National Disaster Medical System may be deployed, she said, adding that response might also include personnel from the Department of Defense and the Federal Emergency Management Agency, or FEMA. If extra supplies like ventilators or personal protective equipment are needed, they're available upon request from the Strategic National Stockpile, she added. No states had requested this level of support as of Friday.

Flu causing more severe illness in the young, elderly

Federal health officials on Friday painted a picture of some respiratory illnesses like flu surging in some areas of the country, with other areas seeing peaks of RSV, or respiratory syncytial virus infection. Cases of COVID and flu-like illnesses are occurring all areas, they said.

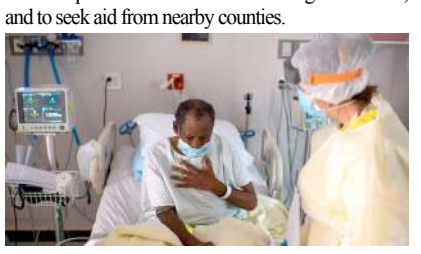
RSV is a common virus that hospitalizes thousands of infants and young children each year, though it can also pose a risk to the elderly. Symptoms can range from mild cold-like ailments like sneezing, sore throat, fever, and stuffy nose to pneumonia, which can prove fatal. Patients can quickly take a turn for the worst.
In the Southeast U.S., nearly 20% of flu tests sent to a lab are returning positive—most of them for influenza A, which appears to be more severe in children and the elderly. In the Mid-Atlantic and Midwest regions, an early flu season is also causing severe illness in those age groups, according to Romero. The second influenza-related pediatric death of the season was recently reported, he added.
But flu isn't the country's only problem when it comes to respiratory illnesses, nor is COVID. Eight out of 10 regions of the country are seeing levels of RSV "significantly higher than those seen at the same time in previous years." And levels of "influenza-like" illness, defined as a fever with cold-like symptoms or sore throat, are also high for the time of year, Romero added.

An alert to health care providers throughout the U.S. will soon be issued, detailing best practices regarding testing and treatment for, and prevention of, the variety of respiratory illnesses being seen en masse so early this season, he said. He advised parents of children who have trouble breathing, who appear to be blue, who are experiencing chest or muscle pain, who are dehydrated (no urine for eight hours is one sign), and/or who are not alert or interactive when awake to seek immediate medical attention.
O'Connell encouraged all Americans to cover their coughs. And she encouraged those at high risk for illness—like infants and young children, those 65 and older, pregnant individuals, and those with certain chronic health conditions—to stay away from people who are sick and wash their hands frequently, or use alcohol-based hand sanitizer.

"People may choose to wear a well-fitting mask as an added precaution," she added. She also plugged antivirals like Tamiflu for flu and Paxlovid for COVID, though she emphasized that they must be taken shortly after symptom onset if they're going to blunt the impact of an infection.

California's Orange County is overwhelmed—and it's not alone

Earlier this week California's Orange County declared a health emergency due to an overwhelming surge in respiratory illness that's pushing pediatric hospitals to their limits.
Sky-high numbers of young patients are seeking emergency-room care in area children's hospitals for RSV, the flu, flu-like illnesses, and, to a lesser extent, COVID, the OC Health Care Agency said Monday. The emergency declaration allows the county to receive help from the state and federal governments, and to seek aid from nearby counties.



Children's Hospital of Orange County is seeing upwards of 400 children in its emergency department daily—a record high—and is using all available space to meet demands. It has activated a command center within the hospital to manage the high patient load, a spokesperson told Fortune in a Tuesday statement.

Southern California is far from alone, with pediatric hospitals all across North America experiencing similar struggles—and some even considering outdoor tents to house patients and calling in the National Guard for help. The vast majority—around 75%—of U.S. children's hospital beds are currently full, according to NBC News. To the north, Canada is seeing similar issues, with some pediatric hospitals canceling surgeries, according to media reports. Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario, a pediatric hospital in Ottawa, was at 130% capacity for intensive care beds and 134% capacity for inpatient beds, respectively, last week, a Canadian TV outlet reported.

Fortune has repeatedly reached out to HHS over the past week and a half, inquiring as to the number of pediatric hospital beds occupied in the U.S., but has not received a response. But anecdotally, the figure has a ring of truth, Dr. Anita Patel, a critical care doctor at Children's National hospital in Washington, D.C., told Fortune on Tuesday. Patel is in contact with other East Coast pediatric hospitals, "and almost every single major one" is nearly full, she said.
Children's National has been operating close to capacity for over a month. It's formed an additional team of high-level ICU doctors to care for children who need ICU admission, but who must stay in the emergency room until a bed opens up, according to Patel.
The surge in pediatric patients was initially fueled by the common cold, but RSV quickly surpassed it. While levels of RSV have since plateaued, "the flu is really on a rapid rise in our region," she said, adding that her hospital hasn't recently seen a significant number of patients with COVID or other coronaviruses that can cause respiratory illness.

"I can honestly say that, unfortunately, with both RSV and the flu, we have had kids that needed to be intubated or have breathing tubes to help get through viral illness," she said.
"I've been a practicing ICU doctor for a decade now, and I think I can safely say this is one of the worst surges I've ever seen."
Doctors and public health officials have been keeping a close eye on the U.S. flu season this fall out of concern that the virus will strike early and hit children particularly hard, as it did in Australia this spring. While hospitalizations and deaths were nothing unusual there, cases of flu peaked earlier and higher. And children and teens, who usually fare well with the flu, bore the brunt. The majority of reported flu cases were among young people ages 0–14, according to an Oct. 9 report from the Australian government. (Courtesy https://fortune.com/)

完整修車廠《修車師姐》徐云專欄31 常見的剎車故障問題

1. 剎車時有嗡嗡聲，或者在踩剎車時方向盤發抖，這時一定要檢查制動蹄片(brake pads)和剎車盤(brake rotor) 有無受熱變形，或者是否剎車皮已經用光。如果不馬上檢修剎車， 有可能會造成剎車系統更多的破壞。

2. 剎車踏板行程很長，剎車踏板有時一踩就到底，感覺剎車踏板軟綿綿的或者有時剎車失靈，這時一定要檢查剎車總泵(brake master cylinder)或分泵(Caliper, wheel cylinder)是否漏油， 剎車管(brake hose)是否破損漏油。

3.踩剎車時汽車方向出現向左或右跑， 這是剎車系統左右不對稱 ， 必須要檢查剎車總泵或分泵的工作情況，剎車片和剎車盤的厚度以及剎車管路是否有阻塞。

4. 剎車踏板感覺重，踩剎車比較費力或者車子不能迅速停止，這時一定要檢查汽車的剎車助力系統。看剎車助力泵（brake booster) 是否失效或者眞空管有無漏氣。

正常行駛條件下每行駛 5000 miles 時對製動蹄片檢查一次，不僅要檢查剩餘的厚度，還要檢查蹄片磨損的狀態，兩邊磨損的程度是否一樣，回位是否自如。還要檢查剎車油的質量及是否有洩漏等，發現不正常情況必須立即處理。一些車輛帶有製動蹄片報警功能，一旦達到了磨損極限，儀表會報警提示更換蹄片。達到使用極限大約在20%的時侯蹄片須更換新片。汽車剎車液體也必須要有必要的保養，因爲長期的使用剎車使得剎車液長期的受熱變質將對剎車系統造成很大的麻煩。

完整修車廠 修車師姐徐云專欄33 空調使用誤區

誤區1—— 空調性能不良時才清洗空調。

空調濾清器要定期更換，否則會產生霉味，因此最好每年的春季過後更換一次。另外，冷凝器也要定時清洗，而且要將水箱拆下來，清洗才能徹底。

誤區2 ——空調出風口方向隨意調。

有的車主在使用空調時，不注意調整空調吹風的方向，這不利於發揮空調的最佳效果。正確的做法應該是，開冷氣時將出風口向上，開暖氣時將出風口向下。

誤區3 ——整個冬天都不開空調

一些地區的冬季比較暖和，有的車主整個冬天都不使用空調。長時間不用空調會導致其橡膠圈老化，空調內部各部件上的潤滑油也會變乾，定期啓動空調能讓各部件接受潤滑油的潤滑，維持良好狀態，因此在冬季空調也最好每週啓動一次。

誤區4—— 長時間開著空調

有的車主常常在上車後就一直開著空調，長時間使用空調會使冷凝器壓力過大，這會對製冷系統壓縮機造成損耗，如果車內溫度已經達到舒適的溫度，就可以把空調關掉，隔一會兒再開。

誤區5 ——夏季進車立即開內循環

在炎熱的夏天，很多車主習慣一進車內就打開空調的內循環，認爲這樣可以讓車廂內溫度下降得快一點。因爲車內的溫度比車外溫度高，所以這樣反而效果不好。剛進入車內的時候，應該先開窗通風，並開啓外循環，把熱氣都排出去。等車廂內溫度下降之後，再換成內循環。

誤區6——長時間開內循環

應該開一會兒內循環，再開一會兒外循環，讓新鮮空氣進入車廂。不能開著內循環在車內睡覺，也是這個道理。

誤區7—— 先熄火再關空調

有的車主常常在熄火之後才想起關閉空調，這對發動機是有害的，因爲這樣在車輛下次啓動時，發動機會帶著空調的負荷啓動，這樣的高負荷會損傷發動機。因此每次停車後應先關閉空調再熄火，而且也應該在車輛啓動兩三分鐘後才打開空調。

誤區8—— 從不使用大風量

有的車主因爲不喜歡空調開到高擋時發出的噪音，因此很少或從不將空調開到大風量。空調使用時會吸進很多灰塵，定期開大風能將空調風道內表面的浮塵吹出來，這是保持空調清潔的一種簡單的方法。
