Congressional report: U.S. FDA broke own proto# cols in approving Biogen Alzheimer's drug

Sunday, January 01 2023

WASHINGTON, Dec 29 (Reuters) - The U.S. Food and Drug Administration failed to adhere to its own guidance and internal practices during the approval process for Biogen's (BIIB.O) Alzheimer's drug Aduhelm, which was "rife with irregularities," a congressional report showed on Thursday.

The FDA's interactions with Biogen were "atypical" and did not follow the agency's documentation protocol, according to a staff report on the findings of an 18-month investigation conducted by two House of Representatives committees into the drug's regulatory review, approval, pricing, and marketing.

The FDA approved Aduhelm in June 2021 under an accelerated approval pathway over the objections of its panel of outside advisers, who did not believe data definitively proved the drug's benefit to patients.

It was authorized based on evidence that it could reduce brain plaques, a likely contributor to Alzheimer's, rather than proof that it slowed progression of the lethal mind-wasting disease.

The Medicare program restricted its coverage, which has led to severely limited use of the Biogen drug.

Biogen set an "unjustifiably high" price by initially setting Aduhelm's price at $56,000 per year despite a lack of demonstrated clinical benefit in a broad patient population, the report said, adding that the company's own internal projections showed it expected the drug to be a burden to Medicare and costly to patients.

"The findings in this report raise serious concerns about FDA's lapses in protocol and Biogen's disregard of efficacy and access in the approval process for Aduhelm," the report, prepared by the staffs of the House Committee on Oversight and Reform and House Committee on Energy and Commerce, concluded.

The agency should ensure that all substantive interactions with drug sponsors are properly memorialized, establish a protocol for joint briefing documents with drug sponsors, and update its industry guidance on the developments and review of new Alzheimer's Drugs, the report recommended

Biogen and other drugmakers should communicate to the FDA any concerns over safety and efficacy to the FDA as well as take value and patient access into consideration when setting prices, the report said.

An FDA spokesperson said the FDA's decision to approve Aduhelm was based on scientific evaluation of the data contained in the application.

He pointed to the FDA's internal review finding its staff's interactions with Biogen appropriate.

"It is the agency's job to frequently interact with companies in order to ensure that we have adequate information to inform our regulatory decision-making. We will continue to do so, as it is in the best interest of patients," he said, adding that the agency will continue to use the accelerated approval pathway whenever appropriate.

The FDA has already begun implementing some of the report's recommendations, the spokesperson said.

"Biogen stands by the integrity of the actions we have taken," the Cambridge, Mass.-based biotech company said in an emailed statement.

"As stated in the congressional report, an (FDA) review concluded that, 'There is no evidence that these interactions with the sponsor in advance of filing were anything but appropriate in this situation," Biogen said.

Documents obtained by the committees show that FDA staff and Biogen held at least 115 meetings, calls, and email exchanges over a 12-month period starting July 2019.

The total number of meetings is unknown because the FDA failed to keep a clear record of informal meetings and interactions between its staff and Biogen representatives. The investigation identified an additional 66 calls and email exchanges that were not memorialized.

The FDA inappropriately collaborated with Biogen on a joint briefing document for the Peripheral and Central Nervous System (PCNS) Advisory Committee, the report said, with FDA and Biogen staff working closely for months ahead of the Nov. 6, 2020 meeting to prepare the document, which failed to adequately represent differing views within the agency.

"Using a joint briefing document afforded Biogen advance insight into FDA's responses and direct guidance from the agency in drafting the company's own sections. For example, in an exchange of the draft briefing document on October 9, 2020, FDA staff asked Biogen to move a paragraph drafted by the agency into Biogen's section of the memorandum—a change reflected when the document was finalized," the report made public to media organizations said.

When none of the advisory panel members voted to approve Aduhelm, the FDA pivoted to using its accelerated approval pathway - typically used for rare diseases or small patient populations that lack access to effective treatments - despite having considered the drug under the traditional approval pathway for nine months, the report said.

It did so on a substantially abbreviated timeline, approving it after three weeks of review, and for a broad label indication of "people with Alzheimer's disease" that was unsupported by clinical data, the report said.

Internal documents obtained by the investigation showed that Biogen accepted the indication despite its own reservations over the lack of evidence Aduhelm could help patients at disease stages outside of its clinical trials.

Thought of the past year

As the last page of this year's calendar passes we welcome the arrival of the 2023 new year. Life likes a train that can only walk forward. The days are a journey without ending. Tears and sweat are intertwined There are filled with laughter and sadness.

Last year there was a war around us, banks raised interest rates, prices soared, and the epidemic was still full of disaster and suffering. Messi took back the world championship for Argentina, but could not able to help his compatriots to live and struggle under poverty. Donald Trump's legal issue may break his presidential dream. Tesla's boss Musk wanted to become a media tycoon and make himself at the crisis.

Personally, We are very grateful to meet many of our old friends in our house to celebrate the 20th birthday of the International Trade center.

We media person we always stand at the forefront line to serve everyone forever.

Southern Make Today Different

Highlights From The United Nations' Latest Release Of Its World Population Estimates

Key Findings From The 2022 United Nations Population Prospects Study

Compiled And Edited By John T. Robbins, Southern Daily Editor

Key Points

How many people are there in the world? How many die each year, and how many babies are born? These are key questions that we need to understand the world around us. The global population dataset is one of our most important at Our World in Data: it underpins nearly every topic we cover.

The UN releases an update of its World Population Prospects every two years. Its latest release was due in 2021 but was delayed as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. But, today - on World Population Day the long-awaited dataset has been released. The following article highlights some of the key findings of the twenty-seventh publication of the 'World Population Prospects'.

United Nations

Department of Economic and Social Affairs Population Division

World Population Prospects 2022

The 2022 Revision of World Population Prospects is the twenty-seventh edition of official United Nations population estimates and projections that have been prepared by the Population Division of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat. It presents population estimates from 1950 to the present for 237 countries or areas, underpinned by analyses of historical demographic trends. This latest assessment considers the results of 1,758 national population censuses conducted between 1950 and 2022, as well as information from vital registration systems and from 2,890 nationally representative sample surveys The 2022 revision also presents population projections to the year 2100 that reflect a range of plausible outcomes at the global, regional and national levels.

By Hannah Ritchie, Edouard Mathieu, Lucas Rodés-Guirao and Marcel Gerber

#1. The World Population Will Pass 8 Billion At The End Of 2022

Since 1975 the world has been adding another billion people every 12 years. It passed its last milestone – 7 billion in 2011, And, by the end of 2022, it will pass another one: there will be the global population growth rate has fallen below 1%.

8 billion people in the world. While this rate of absolute growth is similar to previous decades, the growth rate continues to fall. Since 2019.

That's less than half its peak rate of growth - of 2.3% -in the 1960s.

As global fertility rates continue to fall (see below), this rate will continue to fall.

#2. The UN Estimates Around 15 Million Excess Deaths In 2020 And 2021 From The COVID-19

Pandemic The Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic has had a significant impact on global population and migration trends.

We know that the confirmed death toll from COVID-19 is likely to significantly underestimate the true number of deaths because of limited testing. One way to get a better estimate of the total mortality impact of the pandemic is to look at excess mortality data. We can look at the total number of deaths and compare this to the number we expect to occur in a

In its latest population dataset, the UN estimates that in 2020, there were approximately 5 million excess deaths. In 2021, this figure was 10 million.

This estimate of 15 million excess deaths over 2020 and 2021 is in line with estimates from other organizations. The Economist put its central estimate of excess deaths at 17.6 million. The World Health Organization, which is a UN organization, estimated 14.9 million excess deaths.

These death figures are highly uncertain. But what's clear is that the number of confirmed deaths - which was just 5.4 million by the end of 2021 - captures just a fraction of the true impact of the pandemic.

#3. The Global Population Is Projected To

Peak At Around 10.4 Billion In 2086 The world population has increased rapidly over the last century. When will it come to an end? Previous versions of the UN World Population Prospects showed a significant slowdown in population growth, with very slow growth - almost reaching a plateau - by the end of the century. In its previous release, it projected that the world population would be around 10.88 billion in 2100, and would not yet have peaked. In this new release, the UN projects that the global population will peak before the end of the century in 2086 at just over 10.4 billion people.1

There are several reasons for this earlier, and lower, peak. One is that the UN expects fertility rates to fall more quickly in low-income countries compared to previous revisions. It also expects less of a 'rebound' in fertility rates across high-income countries in the second half of the century.

#4. The Global Fertility Rate Has Continued To Decline To 2.3 Births Per Woman

A key determinant of the global population rate is the average number of children that women have over their lifetime—the 'fertility rate'.

Fertility rates have fallen rapidly across the world in recent decades. In 1950, the average woman gave birth around 5 times. Since then, fertility rates have more than halved. In 2021, this global figure was 2.3 births

If you switch to the map tab in the interactive chart you see that most people in the world now live in countries where fertility rates are at - or below - the 'replacement level'. This is the level at which populations would stabilize or shrink over the long-term. The UN reports that two-thirds of people live in countries where the fertility rate is below 2.1 births per woman. In some high-income countries such as South Korea, Japan, Spain, or Italy, it is as low as 1.3 births per woman.

#5. Next Year India Is Expected To Take Over From China As The World's Most Populous Country

China has been the world's most populous country for decades. It is now home to more than 1.4 billion people. However, its population growth rate has fallen significantly following a rapid drop in its fertility rate people per year: over the 1970s and 80s.

COMMUNITY

The fertility rate in India has also fallen substantially in recent decades – from 5.7 births per woman in 1950 to just 2 births per woman today. However, the rate of this decline has been slower.

Because of this, India will very soon overtake China as the most populous country in the world. The UN expects this to happen in 2023. (Courtesy https:// ourworldindata.org/) For more information, go here: https://ourworldindata.org/world-population-update-2022.

> World Population Highlights The Current World Population 7,961,890,500 TOP20 LARGEST COUNTRIES BY POPULATION

World Population: Past, Present, and Future

At the dawn of agriculture, about 8000 B.C., the population of the world was approximately 5 million. Over the 8,000-year period up to 1 A.D. it grew to 200 million (some estimate 300 million or even 600, suggesting how imprecise population estimates of early historical periods can be), with a growth rate of under 0.05% per year.)

A tremendous change occurred with the industrial revolution: whereas it had taken all of human history until around 1800 for world population to reach one billion, the second billion was achieved in only 130 years (1930), the third billion in 30 years (1960), the fourth billion in 15 years (1974), and the fifth billion in only 13 years (1987).

• During the 20th century alone, the population in the world has grown from 1.65 billion to 6 billion. • In 1970, there were roughly half as many people in the world as there are now.

• Because of declining growth rates, it will now take over 200 years to double again.

Population Growth Rate

Population in the world is, as of 2020, growing at a rate of around 1.05% per year (down from 1.08% in 2019, 1.10% in 2018, and 1.12% in 2017). The current average population increase is estimated at 81 million

Annual growth rate reached its peak in the late 1960s, when it was at around 2%. The rate of increase has nearly halved since then, and will continue to decline

World population will therefore continue to grow in the 21st century, but at a much slower rate compared to the recent past. World population has doubled (100% increase) in 40 years from 1959 (3 billion) to 1999 (6 billion). It is now estimated that it will take another nearly 40 years to increase by another 50% to become 9 billion by 2037.

The latest world population projections indicate that world population will reach 10 billion persons in the year 2057.

World Population Forecast (2020-2050) 10 Billion (2057) The United Nations projects world population to reach 10 billion in the year

9 Billion (2037) World population is expected to reach 9 billion in the year 2037.

8 Billion (2023) World population is expected to reach 8 billion people in 2023 according to the United Nations (in 2026 according to the U.S. Census Bureau). 7.96 Billion (2022) The current world population is 7.96 billion as of July 2022 [1] according to the most recent United Nations estimates elaborated by Worldometer. The term "World Population" refers to the human population (the total number of humans currently living) of the world.

7 Billion (2011) According to the United Nations, world population reached

7 Billion on October 31, 2011.

The US Census Bureau made a lower estimate, for which the 7 billion mark was only reached on March 12, 2012.

6 Billion (1999) According to the United Nations, the 6 billion figure was reached on October 12, 1999 (celebrated as the Day of 6 Billion). According to the U.S. Census Bureau instead, the six billion milestone was reached on July 22, 1999, at about 3:49 AM GMT. Yet, according to the U.S. Census, the date and time of when 6 billion was reached will probably change because the already uncertain estimates are constantly being updated.
